THE CHINA MAIL.

THE CUSTOMS "WEDGE"

That the "thin end of the Wedge" was slowly but surely being inserted by the Chief of the Customs service between Consuls and communities has been time and again asserted in emphatic terms by most of the journals in China. A considerable move forward was made when the endorsement of the two most important commercial bodies in China—the Chani-

Shanghai-was obtained to Mr Hart's famous despatch, proposing "direct com; munication" between them and himself-and we accurately predicted that this idea was but the forerunner of a more comprehensive plan which had for its object the deprivation of Consular officers of a great portion of the functions which now appertain to them. We are not now discussing the adviseability or otherwise of this scheme being carried into operation. As we observed in a recent article upon the same subject, the future in China is so uncertain, and impending changes may have so altered the relation between Chinese and foreigners, that it is impossible to assert with any degree of the better development of the vast resources of this country. Under present conditions, however, there can be little doubt of the injurious tendency of throwing into the hands of alien employes of the Chinese Government-men who are technically Chinese subjects, while able at any inmute to claim the protection, of the flag under which they were born-powers analogous to those of a Consul upon whose acts may in many cases depend the maintenance of peace, or the declaration of war. We do not reiterate the arguments already adduced and with which the Anglo-Chinese public are already tolerably familiar but confine our present remarks to drawing attention to a fresh blow at the "Wedge."

Mr Jas. K. Leonard issues a notification under date of 25th ult., "for the Commissioner of Customs" in which he sets forth that in consequence of representations made by Merchants interested in the importation of Munitions of War under License, to the effect that they are exposed to loss by the frequent "rejection "of part of their importations by the Arms' Agents of the Native Authorities, "It is hereby notified, that if Importers will furnish the Commissioner of Customs with detailed lists of the description and quantity of rejected

Munitions of War-being in their Go-downs, and will also give Bond for their non-removal without permission, every possible facility will be given to their realization or re-exportation." Mr Leonard further expresses a hope that these lists may be handed in to him before the lst of September. This is very kind of Mr Leonard; and it is kinder still of Mr Hart to have directed the issue of such a notification. Piece Goods and hardware will, of course, soon follow, and all the old obstructiveness will be swept away if the Commissioner be consulted, in place of the Consul, when difficulties arise.

What does Mr Medhurst think of this we wonder? At this rate "H. M.'s Consul" will soon be a nonentity, especially if a Commissioner be deputed to examine into outrages like those of Chin-

His Lordship the Chief Justice has discharged the rule nisi by which the defendant in Regina v. Saint sought to expedite the trial. There was no other course open to His Lordship, and thus it happens that a ruinous process of law may be permitted to worry the defendant for an indefinite period. It is a cowardly procedure altogether; and it would be impossible but for the connivance with it of a British Attorney General-a.

TO-DAY'S POLICE. Mr May on the ench. There was only one case of importance, as follows: MODEL POLICEMEN. -Mr Holmes Granger appeared to answer a summons, at the instance of P. C. 41 (John Walker), in so far as he "did unlawfully assault and beat the complainant," on the night of the 31st ultimo. The case excited considerable interest, and a number of witnesses were examined on both sides. P. C. John Walker (41), stated that he except one who was a little excited; the po-
